

```
//import statements here
```

```
public class ClassNamelsCapitalized {
```

```
    public static void main(String[] args)
    {
```

```
        //lines and curly braces are indented properly
        int descriptiveName = 5; //comment describes variable if user wouldn't know boolean isOn = true;
```

```
        /* after copy & paste, multiline comments should always always always be reformatted to be indented and enclosed in comment marks*/ double camelCodeName = 6.5;
```

```
        //space out different sections of code to improve readability
```

```
        if(isOn)
        {
            //statements inside blocks are indented properly
            while (descriptiveName > 7)
            {
                descriptiveName++;
                camelCodeName -= 3;
                isOn = false;
            }
        } else {
            camelCodeName = 8;
        }
    }
```

```
}
```

/* precondition: anything user should know in order to use the method properly, including explanation of parameters

var1 represents

var2 represents....

word represents....

postcondition: what the method is intended to do */

```
public static int method1(int var1, double var2, String word)
```

```
{
```

```
    System.out.println("This sentence is soooooo long that when copied and " +
                        "pasted it from the IDE, I had to break up the string into 2");
```

```
    return 4;
```

```
}
```

```
} //end class
```